Muhammad's Early Life

Muhammad was born into the Quraish tribe, which was one of the most powerful tribes in Mecca. His father, Abdullah, died before he was born, and his mother, Amina, died when he was six years old. He was then raised by his grandfather, Abdul-Muttalib, and his uncle, Abu Talib.

From a young age, Muhammad was known for his honesty and trustworthiness. He was also known for his generosity and his willingness to help others. He was called "al-Amin," which means "the trustworthy one."

Muhammad's Call to Prophethood

When Muhammad was forty years old, he received his first revelation from Allah. He was in a cave on Mount Hira when he saw a vision of the angel Gabriel. Gabriel told Muhammad that he was the last prophet of Allah and that he was to preach the message of monotheism and Islam.

Muhammad was initially hesitant to accept his call to prophethood, but he eventually agreed. He began to preach his message to the people of Mecca, but he faced much opposition. The Quraish tribe did not want to give up their polytheistic beliefs, and they persecuted Muhammad and his followers.

The Hijrah

In 622 CE, Muhammad and his followers were forced to leave Mecca and travel to Medina. This journey is known as the Hijrah. The Hijrah marked the beginning of the Islamic calendar.

In Medina, Muhammad was welcomed by the people of the city. He established a Muslim community and began to spread the message of Islam throughout Arabia.

The Battles of Badr and Uhud

In 624 CE, the Muslims fought their first battle against the Quraish tribe at Badr. The Muslims were outnumbered, but they won the battle. This victory was a major turning point for the Muslims.

In 625 CE, the Muslims fought another battle against the Quraish tribe at Uhud. The Muslims were initially victorious, but they were eventually defeated. However, the Battle of Uhud showed the Quraish that the Muslims were a force to be reckoned with.

The Treaty of Hdaybiyyah

In 628 CE, Muhammad and the Quraish tribe signed the Treaty of Hdaybiyyah. This treaty allowed the Muslims to perform the Hajj pilgrimage to Mecca. The Treaty of Hdaybiyyah was a major victory for the Muslims, and it showed that they were now a recognized force in Arabia.

The Conquest of Mecca

In 630 CE, Muhammad and his army conquered Mecca. The Quraish tribe surrendered, and Muhammad forgave them for all the persecution they had caused him and his followers.

Muhammad's Death

In 632 CE, Muhammad fell ill and died. He was buried in Medina.
